Dear Dave,

During one of our stimulating conversations at Sanderling, you mentioned that you had difficulty in determining just where our oil supplies were actually being consumed. I asked one of my staff to check with Dr. Schlesinger's office, and enclosed is a breakdown of the 1975 and 1976 statistics. It really shows that busses, trucks and cars are the big consumers - 55% of the total.

Pat and I certainly found it a great treat to have an opportunity to be with you and Helen as well as the California Andrews clan. We are so pleased that we had that day of overlap.

Look forward to seeing you both again soon.

All the best.

Yours,
